Acknowledgements

The 'In Sync' programme has been produced in a partnership between CCEA and the five Education and Library Boards. We would like to take this opportunity to acknowledge the time and effort given to this project by the Personal Development Advisors and their officers, without whom this resource would not have been developed. In particular, we wish to acknowledge the use of their existing materials that have been incorporated into this pack, including the various contributors to the Chrysalis resource pack.

We would also like to acknowledge the significant work of Clare McFadden in the writing and editing process of these materials.

Finally, we would like to thank the schools, including the regional pilot schools, who were involved in the consultation process that facilitated the development of these support materials.

Rationale for Personal Development (PD)

Personal Development is about the holistic development of individuals. There is now clear evidence that highlights the importance of promoting the development of Emotional Intelligence (EI) in young people alongside other aspects of health promotion. EI refers to the capacity for recognizing our own feelings and those of others, for motivating ourselves, and for managing emotions in ourselves and in our relationships. In the school context, this involves providing learning opportunities to develop values, attitudes and skills as well as the acquisition of knowledge. PD can help promote genuine relationships within the school community and enable young people to:

- work towards achieving their potential;
- become confident, interdependent and participative citizens;
- make informed and responsible choices and decisions throughout their lives.

Context for the 'In Sync' PD programme

This programme has been developed to help schools interpret the statutory statements of requirement for the KS3 strand of Personal Development (PD). It offers a process for PD that is both holistic and flexible in order to facilitate discrete delivery or an integrated approach as part of a connected learning framework.

How to Use the 'In Sync' Programme

The title of this programme, 'In Sync', refers to the need to find balance and be synchronised in the agreed categories that define an individual in terms of their health (Social, Physical, Emotional, Cognitive and Spiritual). These areas will be touched on in varying degrees throughout many Areas of Learning and through the Pastoral Curriculum in schools.

However, with the provision of a defined, statutory curriculum, schools should ensure that all pupils have access to a comprehensive programme that addresses all aspects of Personal Development.

Schools should also ensure that at all times the content of the materials they use to deliver Personal Development, reflects and supports the school's ethos, pastoral care policy and programme.

'In Sync' has been developed around ten themes which reflect the development of the whole person, and which address the statements of minimum requirement for PD.

The ten themes in the 'In Sync' programme are:

- 1 Health and the Whole Person
- 2 Feelings and Emotions
- 3 Managing Influences and Making Decisions
- 4 Self Concept
- 5 Managing Change
- 6 Morals, Values and Beliefs
- 7 Learning about Learning
- 8 Safety and Managing Risk
- 9 Relationships and Sexuality
- 10 Drugs Awareness

The programme maps the key concepts and statements of minimum requirement against the themes identified in the programme (see Appendix). These themes are then broken down into sub-themes and mapped across Year 8, 9 and 10 to ensure clear and appropriate links and progression throughout Key Stage 3. Each sub-theme is explored through a range of suggested activities, exemplifying the integration of skills and capabilities, from which teaching materials and resources are developed. Individual schools may decide the order in which to explore these themes, however, it is recommended that 'Health and the Whole Person' is delivered early in the programme.

Note: The resources can also be found on the accompanying CD.

The exemplar programme is part of an overall package of guidance and support that will be available to schools for implementing the statements of requirement for PD as part of Learning for Life and Work (LLW).

Additional resource and support materials include:

- CPD units which include specific units for the implementation of Personal Development. These are available in your Curriculum Support and Implementation box and can be downloaded from www.nicurriculum.org.uk;
- Thematic Units showing how elements of PD can be supported and delivered in the context of other Areas of Learning. Those units written for PD can be used as stand-alone units of work and will be another resource available to schools;
- Bespoke textbooks being developed by commercial publishers, written to support the Northern Ireland Curriculum.

Additionally schools are encouraged to use:

- Existing resources already being used to deliver PD programmes in schools. Much of this material can continue to be used, amended and/or supplemented to create a more holistic approach to PD;
- External organisations, whose work is related to aspects of PD. Schools need to ensure that the information provided by external organisations reflects the school's ethos and values;
- Other school initiatives that will, in part, help support the personal development of their pupils and staff for example, Healthy Schools initiative, peer mentoring, counselling etc. These initiatives should be taken into consideration during any audit of provision.

Framework for the Teaching Activities and Resources

The activity sheets have been designed to incorporate as many aspects of the Northern Ireland Curriculum 'Big Picture' as possible.

- Each activity sheet has a theme, aim and sub-theme clearly displayed to facilitate mapping back to the programme overview.
- Several learning intentions have been identified for each activity, one of which is linked to the Thinking Skills and Personal Capabilities framework. Occasionally, additional skills based learning intentions are identified.
- The learning experiences, attitudes and dispositions that could potentially be developed through the activities are indicated along with identification of the skills and capabilities that can be assessed.
- Opportunities for teachers to apply Assessment for Learning strategies are identified throughout the activities.
- At the start of each activity the resources you need and methodologies used are displayed.
- Where possible, resources are included in this pack to support the activities.

Many of the activities and resources have been developed to support each theme in the programme offering a wide range of choice to teachers and coordinators responsible for planning the school's provision for PD.

Using the Teaching Activities and Resources

Many schools already have comprehensive PD programmes in place. By carrying out an audit against the statutory statements for PD, any gaps in provision can be identified. Appropriate activities from 'In Sync' could then be integrated into existing programmes to ensure the provision of a holistic programme of PD for pupils.

Alternatively, schools may wish to develop their PD provision around the concept of the ten themes of 'In Sync'. In this case, coordinators will need to select and adapt activities that are age appropriate and support the specific needs of the pupils in their school.

During the planning process, coordinators may need to give consideration to issues such as:

- allocated time for discrete provision;
- level of integrated provision through other subjects;
- confidence and competence of teaching personnel with PD.

Introduction to Conceptual Themes in Key Stage 3

Conceptual themes are the suggested vehicle through which the key concepts and statements of requirement are taught. The themes shown in bold highlight those which are most relevant to each key concept area, although it should be recognised that there is considerable cross over throughout.

Ground Rules for Year 9

It is important to establish Ground Rules with each group of pupils to ensure a safe, non-threatening environment. The aim is to have an agreed list of rules about how to work together. If a class comes up with their own Ground Rules, in their own words, it gives a greater sense of ownership, and they are more likely to abide by them and respect them. As in everyday life, some compromises may have to be made to reach an agreed list. Everyone has to feel that they can abide by these rules, even if they may not completely agree with some of them.

Ideally, the class Ground Rules should be displayed on a wall during every lesson. They can be referred to when necessary, encouraging positive behaviour and a sense of security for the pupils. If a particular Ground Rule is not being adhered to, the teacher could highlight this point, and offer the opportunity for the class to change the Ground Rule. The group may find that they want to adjust the emphasis of a Rule, or add more Rules once they start working together. Alternatively, it gives the pupils an opportunity to confirm how important they think the Rule is. Those pupils having problems adhering to the Rules will then appreciate how important they are to the rest of the group.

The idea of confidentiality, and respecting each other's viewpoint when working as a group, is important. Pupils should feel comfortable airing their views, secure in the knowledge that it will not be repeated outside the room. Point out at this stage that if a pupil discloses specific information indicating they are, or could potentially be, at risk, this information cannot remain confidential and must be passed on. The teacher needs to know which support systems their school has in place so that they can pass on information quickly and smoothly. This is also important for the teacher's own sense of safety and security.

To establish Ground Rules:

- 1 Brainstorm ideas on how people work together as a group. This can be done through asking the pupils to think of a secret. If they were to tell this secret, how would they want the rest of the class to react? Think also of other ways groups work well together, e.g. a football team.
- 2 In small groups pupils agree, 'What's in?' and 'What's out?' to establish rules on a piece of paper.
- 3 Their list of rules are then passed onto another group. Each group reads the list they receive, putting a tick or a cross next to each rule to show whether they agree or not.
- 4 The sheets are passed on again and the process is repeated until each group has an opportunity to read all the other groups' rules, and give their feedback.
- 5 When each group receives their original list of rules back, they review the feedback given, and decide whether they want to adjust any of their rules.

- 6 Each group then takes turns to suggest a rule to the teacher, and writes them up on the board. Lead a class discussion to see if any rule needs to be changed or adapted so that everyone finds them satisfactory. Examples could be:

What's In?

- Everyone has the right to their own opinion
- Often there is not a right or wrong answer
- One person speaks at a time
- Respect each other
- Challenge the idea, not the person
- What is said, stays in the room

What's Out?

- No put downs
- No personal questions
- No interruptions
- Do not volunteer others to speak
- No name calling
